The close of the Scoville revival campaign shows a total attendance of 87,850, with 2,029 lined up for Jesus Christ. This makes the Maryville campaign one of the most successful for a town of this size that Dr. Scoville has ever conducted.

A little over $2,500 was received yesterday in free will offerings for Dr. Scoville and his party. The exact amount will not be known before tomorrow, as D. R. Baker, treasurer of the executive committee in charge of the revival, Fred P. Robinson and Henry Westfall were at work checking up today.

Dr. Scoville was very well pleased with the offering, and appreciated very much the spirit with which the people gave.

The expenses of the meeting, which were raised in collections taken the first two weeks of the meeting, will probably not exceed $1,600. Over $1,900 was raised from these collections, and the balance of $300, or what is left over, will be given to Dr. Scoville. The expenses of the meeting will probably not be checked up for a day or so. They include $600 for the tent, freight and drayage for same; the house rent and food for the party during their stay in Maryville; printing and advertising for the meetings; labor, such as janitor hire and erecting the tent; for lights; renting chairs; for a night watchman, and other incidental expenses.

The total amount, or about $2,800, will go to Dr. Scoville. He will pay out of this amount the members of his party.

Dr. Scoville and members of his party will leave in the morning for Coffeyville, Kan., where their next meeting will be held.

REVIVAL NOTES.

A chautauqua salute was given for the pastors of the churches at last night's meeting.

C. B. Duncan of St. Joseph, presiding elder of the South Methodist church, led the people in prayer last night at the meeting.

Thirty young men and women volunteered for the ministry, the missionary field and the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. secretary work yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Scoville sang "The Books Will All Be Opened Over There" at last night's meeting. Her rendition was greeted with hearty applause.

Scoville Sayings

The greatest sin of the American people is to take something that isn't quite straight and isn't quite true and say, "It's well."

A child has a right to be born right.

If Jesus Christ isn't first, he isn't anything.

I want a plumb line that is held by a hand that is pierced.

Anyone who hasn't sense enough to know that prohibition prohibits can crawl into a bung hole and stay there.

These old shunks in this town who buy whisky and ship it in are disgusting—and I could name some of them, too, if I wanted to.

Mrs. Busch's diamonds are nothing but the tears of women.

I'd rather own a rabbit than to vote a skunk into the ballot box and then run into him.

St. Louis, St. Paul and Milwaukee are dark spots on the American continent.

No city this side of hell is worse than St. Joseph.

Some old devils are afraid to come down here today, but we know who they are and the neighbors know who they are.

More men will be pulled down by corkscrews than will ever be saved by cork jackets.

Character is the sum total of all the choices you have made.

Salvation is not of men; it is of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost.

The tendency of the times is to let the plumb line lean.

You can find many imperfect Christians but you can't find a flaw in the Leader.

We can throw the evergreen sprig into the grave, but that won't save a soul.

I hate the saloon like I hate hell.

You might as well try to insure a powder mill in hell as to insure a drunkard.

The Personal Liberty League is composed of a bunch of white-washed skunks.

During the invitation last night Charles Forsythe sang one or two stanzas of the hymns. He has acquired great popularity as soloist during the campaign here.

Dr. Scoville said that this was the first time in ten years that a part of the last evening service had not been given over to the raising of the thank offering for the party.

MAKES FINAL PLEA

DR. SCOVILLE IN LAST EFFORT TO WIN SOULS.

TENT PACKED TO DOOR

Personal Workers Lead Many to Front At Last Invitation—Masons and Eastern Stars Attend Saturday.

With 2,029 lined up for service and with an attendance of 87,850 persons in the three weeks of the campaign, the Charles Reign Scoville meetings closed last night with one of the most successful services of the campaign.

The tent was packed to the doors—as it was in the Saturday night and Sunday morning meetings, and the enthusiasm of the evangelist, the ministers and the personal workers ran high as they made their final effort to win souls to Jesus Christ.

Grateful for Aid.

Dr. Scoville began by thanking the two daily papers which had allowed the free use of their news columns during the campaign. He thanked the janitors, the choir, the ushers, Professor Landon, Professor Schuler, Dr. Thomas, and all of those who had in any way contributed to the success of the meetings.

The evangelist then preached the closing sermon of the campaign. He made his final plea for those who had not come to Christ to "line up."

"Some persons tell me they sympathize with us in our work,' said Dr. Scoville. "If you sympathize with the church get into the church. Help the ministers to rescue the perishing."

Eloquent Appeal for Converts.

Then, filled with the realization that he was perhaps preaching for the last time to the Nodaway county people, and that there were many souls among them to be saved, Dr. Scoville launched into an eloquent appeal for the unconverted to take a stand for Christ.

"The harvest is past; the summer is ended, and your soul is not saved," he said in a voice low, but intense. "Not saved, and yet you live in a Christian country; not saved, and yet you had a Christian mother."

"Farewell then, fellow sinner. I am free from your blood. I have pleaded; I have entreated, but I cannot compel.

When the invitation to "line up" was given, Dr. Scoville made a special appeal to the personal workers to do their best. The hymns of invitation were sung with spirit and vim and many walked down the aisle in response to the last invitation.

Many Heed Invitation.

Among those who "lined up" was a stockman from Kansas and one of the county officials. The cheering was strenuous and heatrfelt as young men and women, fathers and mothers and grandmothers and grandfathers passed down the aisle.

One young man who had volunteered for service as a missionary came down the aisle to speak to a young friend. Long and earnest was the conversation, and at last arm in arm the two boys walked down the aisle to the front. This was but one of the many scenes witnessed all over the tent.

Saturday, Good Night.

Saturday night about 200 Masons and Eastern Stars attended the meeting in a body. The rest of the seats were occupied by town and country people, many of whom had come from a long distance to attend the meeting.

Dr. Scoville gave his delayed sermon on "The Plumb Line." He compared the Christian religion to the plumb line, which is one of the emblems of Masonry. He said that religion, to be true, must be straight up and down like the plumb line.

A Good Heritage.

Speaking of the right that every child has to a good heritage, the evangelist said:

"A child has a right to be born right. Many children are today suffering, not for their own sins, but for the sins of the preceding generations. I know of one man whose children died one by one from no apparent cause. Investigation proved that the cause of these deaths was the sins of the grandfather, the results of which had skipped one generation and appeared in the second."

Change Residence.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Dusenberry have moved from the Miller property on West Thompson street to a cottage on South Walnut street. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wray will now occupy the Miller cottage.

FOR SCHOOL PAPER

M. H. S. ENTHUSIASTIC OVER PROPOSED PUBLICATION.

PLANS FOR ORCHESTRA

Maryville Conservatory Offers Special Rate to Students Who Will Take the Class Lessons.

A movement is under way to give Maryville High School a school paper. At an assembly this morning Supt. McDonald broached the subject and it was enthusiastically received by the students. Mr. McDonald has had experience in similar undertakings and has been investigating the cost of a school paper for the M. H. S. He reported that the probable cost would be ten cents per copy and asked how many would be willing to subscribe for the paper at that rate. Practically the entire student body signified their willingness. Plans have not yet been completed with regard to the size of the paper and the number of issues a year. Mr. Berger has also had experience in this work.

The assembly was opened with a song by the students led by Miss Rooker. The faculty sang a stanza of this song with great feeling and expression. Supt. McDonald then made his talk relative to the school paper. At the close of his talk he called on Will Hutchison, who is visiting the school today. Will refused to come to the front and make a speech, but he made a talk from his seat that was one of the best we ever heard.

Principal Magee announced that the Maryville Conservatory of Music had to form a class of stringed instruments and orchestra instruction. The cost of a private lesson at the Conservatory is 75 cents; if the class is formed the rate will be 15 cents per student.

Mr. Magee also announced a "pep" assembly for Friday morning to give the football team a good "send-off." The team plays at Stanberry Friday afternoon.

The apple crop is not as heavy but is of a very good quality. Messrs. Ford and Klaas are to sell a limited number of Ben Davis, Ganos and Jonathan culls at their orchard Friday and Saturday, and their advertisement of this sale appears elsewhere in this paper.

"BOOZE" MASTER SERMON

Dr. Scoville Gives Talk That Made Colorado Go Dry to Record Crowd —A Few Excerpts.

Dr. Scoville's master sermon on "Booze" was preached yesterday afternoon to a crowd which filled the tent and all the available standing room.

This sermon, which is said to have been the one instrumental in making Colorado take her stand among the drys, was in many ways the most effective and most intellectual of the campaign. Dr. Scoville not only used illustrations that brought tears to the eyes of the many in the audience, but he backed up these illustrations with statistics that drove home the lessons he desired to convey.

"You tell me that booze helps business, said Dr. Scoville. "I tell you, sir, from the sacred altar that as sure as God is God, the laboring men could afford to pension al lthe men in the whisky business just for the privilege of closing up their joints, and they would be multiplied thousands of dollars ahead and live under a stainless flag.

"A man who stopped drinking," continued the evangelist, "met a saloon keeper who said to him:

"Tom, how are you getting along?" Tom said, "I am getting along all right except that I have a bunch crowing on my left side," putting his hand to the bunch.

The saloon keeper said, "That is what you get for cutting out your drinking. A good glass occasionally would have kept that bunch from growing there, and my opinion is that if you don't come back you will have another bunch like that growing on the other side in a year."

"I hope so," said Tom, as he reached in and pulled out a chamois bag filled with twenty-dollar gold pieces.

"I am told that a California man built a house out of different pieces of wrecked ships that drifted to the shore. A shingle from this, a board from that, a window sill here and a sash there, etc. Whether this is true or untrue I do not know. But one thing I do know; every brewery man, saloon keeper or bartender who has ever built a house has built it up from the wrecks of other homes which have been ruined on the sea of this accursed booze business.

"Alcohol pollutes and enervates its victims. Where it does not enslave it destroys. Where it does not destroy slowly it kills quickly. Where did Booth, who killed Lincoln, Guiteau, who killed Garfield, Czolgosz, who killed McKinley, start from? Did they start from the church or the saloon? Were they enervated by the Holy Spirit, or were the arms of these assassins enervated by the spirit of liquor in their rum-soaked carcasses? Do you want to vote to continue that?

"Booze is a bank. You deposit your money and lose it; your time, and you lose it; your character, and you lose it; your wife, and you lose her; your soul, and you lose it; your father-life and you lose it; your husband-life, and lose it. The saloon is a thief. It is the father of crime. It is the mother of vice; the hotbed of iniquity; the cesspool of infamy. Its songs are the songs of the sirens.

"Its talk is of the lewd fellows of the baser sort. In the saloon is sold nothing but drink, and nothing is done but harm. It pauperizes its patrons in order to enrich the cesspools of its possessor.

"It poisons the people; it pollutes the community; it ruins business; it deforms the body; it wrecks the home; it disgraces the city; it corrupts the state; it evacuates heaven; it peoples hell.

"If you are in favor of that, you have mortgaged yourselves. You have sold your vote to the devil for gain, and you have disgraced your name and mortgaged your soul. I want you to understand if you are in favor of that, that there is one who is dead square against everybody and everything that either bears or favors hell's headquarters on earth of the cursed American saloon.

APPRECIATES ASSISTANCE

The A. M. E. Church Thanks Dr. Scoville and Party For Donation to Their Church.

The Rev. J. D. Wells, pastor of the African M. E. church, will leave in the morning for conference at Macon, Mo. Great progress has been made by the church the past year, and the church has requested that Mr. Wells be sent back.

Over forty-eight dollars was raised at one of the Scoville meetings last week to help out this church in fixing the cupola of the church, which was recently destroyed by fire. The following letter of appreciation has been sent to Dr. Scoville:

To Dr. Scoville and the Pastors and Members of the Churches of Maryville: In accepting the offering made to our church at one of the evening services in the tabernacle, we desire to express our most profound gratitude for not only the material assistance given us, but for the spirit of sympathy and good will extended to us in our recent loss.

We especially desire to thank Dr. Scoville and assure him that our prayers for his future success will follow him.—J. D. Wells, pastor; Charles L. Martin, James Malcome, C. C. Baker, J. L. Gooden, Aaron Williams, trustees.

HALE GETS WRITE-UP

In Sunday's St. Louis Paper of His Work as Pastor in Maryville.

The Rev. Lewis M. Hale, who went to St. Louis last Friday to take the pastorate of the Delmar Avenue Baptist church, got quite a write-up in Sunday's St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Among other things, this paper said:

The Rev. Lewis M. Hale, who today will preach his first sermon as pastor of the Delmar Avenue Baptist church, now at Trinity avenue and Washington boulevard, University City, comes to St. Louis with a record of having waged a spectacular and successful fight to clean up Maryville, where he was pastor of the First Baptist church three years.

The Maryville church was his first pastorate, and he entered upon it fresh from school. He at once began an energetic campaign to change things in a part of the city known as "Dogtown."

The Rev. Mr. Hale had succeeded meanwhile in having the living conditions so much improved in "Dogtown" that the place no longer deserved its ill-favored name. In a special sermon "The Funeral of Dogtown," he told how the place had been made over and requested the people to drop that name. The district is now called the "Fourth ward."

Bees Blind Auto Driver.

Fostoria, O.—A swarm of bees buzzed into an auto truck owned by an advertising company of this city, surrounded the driver, Clarence Ruch, blinding him to such an extent that he sent the truck into a ditch. The driver and a man who was with him were uninjured, but the truck was badly damaged and had to be towed later to Fostoria.

"Passion Play" Shown by Dr. Scoville to Be Preceded by Palestine Views Taken While Abroad.

The "Passion Play" presented by lecture and illustration at the tent tabernacle tonight by Doctor Scoville will give Maryville people an opportunity, not only to see a splendid series of views of the passion play, but also of hearing exceptionally good musical numbers.

Mrs. Scoville will sing two numbers from grand opera and Charles Forsythe will also sing some selections from the operas. Preceding the regular pictures, Doctor Scoville will show a number of views of Palestine taken by himself on his 20,000 mile trip.

TO GO WITH SCOVILLE

Maurice Fitzgerald Joins Evangelist's Party as Agent for Cross Reference Bible Company.

Maurice Fitzgerald, a worker in the choir in the Baptist church and a student at the Normal School last year, will accompany the Scoville party as representative for the Cross-Reference Bible company.

Mr. Fitzgerald is a good singer and his services both as a singer and as an agent for the Bible company will add greatly to the efficiency of the Scoville party.

SARAH BERNHARDT AT FERN.

She Will Appear in "Jeanne Dore" Tomorrow Night.

Whether or not Mme. Sarah Bernhardt will be able to make another American tour, she will be here in her shadow self, in Bluebird photoplays, and the local display of the feature film will be at the Fern theater tomorrow night, when "Jeanne Dore," the last piece in which she acted upon the stage, will be shown. While the stage world and its followers are wondering just what effect the results of her operation will have upon her acting, it is to be remembered that Bernhardt, mistress of pantomime, has ever been able to tell more with the glance of her eye or a shrug of her shoulders than many actresses of her day could vouchsafe by word of mouth. Bernhardt upon the screen may be relied upon to be the Bernhardt of old, greatest woman of her generation.

Preparatory to my quitting the Implement business, I shall on and after January 1, 1917, conduct strictly, a cash or note business. They tell me it can't be done, but I'll show you. The banks do it; Ed Townsend does it; Sears and Robuck do it, and what they can do, I can do. SO KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE INDICATOR and do not misconstrue.

Think!!! Did you ever get ten dollars at a bank without first signing an interest bearing note. and no doubt, giving security? Did you ever get a dollars worth of groceries from Ed Townsend without first paying for them? And last, but not least, did Sears and Robuck ever send you a thing without your first sending the collateral, and too, without your having seen it? These questions, CAN BE answered by the children.

Please Remember The Date.

It is a Fact,

January 1, 1917, I shall have been in the implement business, right here in Maryville a quarter of a century. Think!

This is costing me $2.40.

CIRCUS PREFERS DRY TOWNS

Route Agent of Circus Companies Rather Show in Dry Towns Than Wet Places

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 2.—Time was not so long ago when the advance agent of a big circus took particular pains to ascertain whether the town under his observation was wet or dry. He did not consider it good business to route his show into a dry town. But times have changed, according to circus men interviewed here. Today the route agent prefers the dry cities. The management of a big circus is quick to learn and he has found money more plentiful, crowds more orderly and general conditions better in the dry communities than in the wet communities. Then, too, the "rough necks" "on the show" are not liable to become incapacitated in the dry towns.

AVIATION COSTLY.

Society Folks Pay Dollar a Minute to Learn.

MUST BE RICH FOR GAME.

Many Aristocratic People of New York Are Taking to Flying, and Only They Can Stand Expense Under Present Conditions.

New York.—It costs a dollar a minute to get into our highest social circles since the aristocratic youth of Long Island and Yale, under the patronage of Mrs. Henry P. Davison, have taken up military aviation.

And not only that.

Society is taking a flying start toward the conquest of the air quite aside from the martial aspect of the case. The center of aerial activity is now at Fort Washington, on Manhasset bay.

The patrol is composed of some of the best known young men in society.

ADMIRAL PEARY ABOUT TO TAKE A FLIGHT

It is headed by Trubee Davison and takes in young Robert A. Lovett, whose father is the head of the Union Pacific road; John Vorys of Columbus, O., whose father was one of the best known political figures in the country; John W. Farwell, 3d, son of the Chicago millionaire; Albert Ditman of Englewood, Wesley Laud Brown of Englewood, Artemus L. Gates of Iowa; Earl Gould, son of the late Dr. Elgin R. L. Gould, and Allan Ames. There are a lot more to join, including H. P. Davison, Jr., who is now in France with the American ambulance, and W. F. Sullivan, who is a lieutenant in the British flying corps.

Trubee Davison was on the point of joining the American ambulance in France, too, when he was diverted to the service of this country by the very, very apparent need for aviators along the Mexican border. That showed him how much more good he could do by staying in this land of the free and preparing to uphold the flag in case of need.

John Hays Hammond, Jr., and Admiral Peary gave the notion a push, and the combined force prevailed upon the Davison family to sponsor the patrol.

For the course the boys pay $400 each, which is about a dollar a minute for the actual flying lessons. The buying of a machine and keeping it in repair and the like cost thousands of dollars.

QUICK THINKING SAVED ARM.

Clerk Jumped Into Mail Conveyer When Heavy Cord Caught Him.

Chicago.—A fast working brain saved Emil H. Johnson, a substitute mail clerk at the local postoffice, from possible serious injury recently. He was throwing mail into an endless chain conveyor when his arm became entangled in the heavy cord of a mail sack. Swiftly and surely the arm was being carried into a position where it would be first broken and then torn from his body.

Johnson thought quickly and jumped into the conveyor, laid down and rode with the sack of mail. On the way he disentangled his arm and when the conveyor was stopped walked downstairs and resumed his work.

Man's Will In One Line.

Seattle, Wash.—Containing a single sentence, "I will my property to I. N. Hazlett, No. 2228Z First avenue," the shortest will on record here has been filed in the superior court. The instrument was drawn by A. J. Keller, who died June 15 from injuries received when he was kicked by a horse. The doctors at the hospital where Keller was taken told him he had but a short time to live, so Keller, using a single small sheet of yellow scratch paper, wrote his last will and testament in a firm hand and then died.

Baby Chokes to Death on Candy.

Chicago.—Anthony junior, the eighteen-months-old son of Anthony Tell, choked to death on a stick of candy at the home of his parents on the south side. His six-year-old sister had given him the candy, which lodged in his throat and brought death before medical aid could be summoned.

Fashions in Fabrics

FABRICS depend largely on fashions. A certain style, to be carried out as effectively as possible, must be developed in the right kind of material. It is impossible to make limp, soft material flare or to make a live, wiry fabric hang in soft folds—so a change in fashions is responsible for a change in fabrics. There will be no radical changes in styles this autumn, although the skirts will cling more closely to the figure than they have in the past seasons.

Silks

The silks mostly in demand are those of the softer weaves which hang in soft folds or graceful drapes.

Satin, chiffon taffeta, messalin, poplin, crepe de chine, crepe meteor, Georgette crepe, chiffon crepe and marquisette are the leading silks this season. Black is particularly good style, yet there are many other colors, such as navy blue, purple, taupe, gray, wine, green and brown in the darker shades together with the dainty shades of pink, blue and rose.

Plain colors, figures, checks, stripes and plaids are here in wide variety to choose from.

Wool Fabrics

In woolen fabrics the choice material for suits, coats, dresses and skirts covers quite a large range. The staple materials—serge, gabardine, whipcord, ottoman cloth and wool poplins—are again in the foreground, and in addition to these there are broadcloth, cheviot, mixtures, fancy woolens in checks, plaids and stripes, and wool velours in plain and checked effects.

The checks and plaids combine various new color effects. The leading colors in plain materials are dark blues, greens, taupes, Burgandy and black.

For Evening Wear

The evening materials are delightful. The daintiest of dainty silks, the airy nets and tulles and the most delicate laces are used. Combined with soft silks, taffetas, nets and tulles are silver and gold laces. In colors, white and delicate pastel shades are mostly favored.

NAVY SCHOOLS ARE GOOD

Secretary Daniels, in Speech, Tells of Usefulness and Attractiveness to the Sailors.

Special to the Democrat-Forum.

Bay City, Mich., Oct. 2.—"I believe a man is a better coal passer for being able to parse sentences and bound the states of his country," declared Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, here last night, in a defense of his navy schools, which he said had proved their usefulness and attractiveness to the sailors. Mr. Daniels' speech in part was as follows:

"The American navy is largely a boy institution. The blue jacket enlists at 17. The average of officers and men when the fleet went around the world was 22. There are now 51,500 of these boys in the navy, and the new bill increases them to 76,000 in peace and 87,000 in emergency. The most of them have had very little education when they come in, and are sent to the training stations. Here they are drilled and given the rudiments of naval training. They are given technical instruction and taught the three R's, and this academic instruction is contained aboard ship. The instructors are the younger officers recently from the naval academy.

"What can an American boy learn in a battleship school? It is one fundamental purpose of these schools to develop individuality.

"We live in a day when the individual is being studied as never before. Not only are his present attainments being built upon to increase his usefulness to society, but his latent forces are being coaxed into flower and fruitage. Every angle at which a man may be developed makes him better fitted for service, and in developing the man of our navy individually along the line of the natural endowment and the outcropping bent of mind of each I believe a greater efficiency for team work is secured, which enhances the value of the men behind the guns in the day of battle.

"A radio man will not be the less valuable for having studied the science of electricity—from the time Ben Franklin first lassoed it from the storm clouds with a kite and a key to the day when Field moored the continents alongside of each other with the cable, or Marconi induced it to whisper words from hemisphere to hemisphere without wires. The lad at the wheel, who keeps the captain on the bridge informed as to whether the ship is on her course or not, must be even a better man for his job if he knows how to triangulate.

"A good deal has been written in an attempt to prove that many boys go into the navy because they really do not wish to school at home. I have seen no sufficient evidence, since the school aboard ship was first successfully tried out on the Des Moines in 1913, that American youth enters the navy for a four-year blue jacket truance afloat. The school system in the navy has, I believe, appealed strongly to American youth itself. Certainly it is a fact that a delinquency of 5,000 in the complement of enlisted men has been overcome since 1915, after schools had been established, and at times there has been a waiting list for bluejackets; whereas, when there were no such school the previous administration could not by ardent recruiting and strenuous advertising get enough men to man the ships. In spite of the alleged obnoxious schools the present administration enlisted in three years 6,831 men—twice as many as in Taft's four years—and that with less struggle than ever before in the navy's history."

Do You Know That—

It is dangerous to put anything into the mouth except food and drink?

Sanitary instruction is even more important than sanitary legislation?

The U. S. public health service issues free bulletins on tuberculosis?

The continuous liberal use of alcoholic beverages lowers efficiency and menaces longevity?

Moderate exercise in the open air prolongs life?

DAMAGE BY MOLES

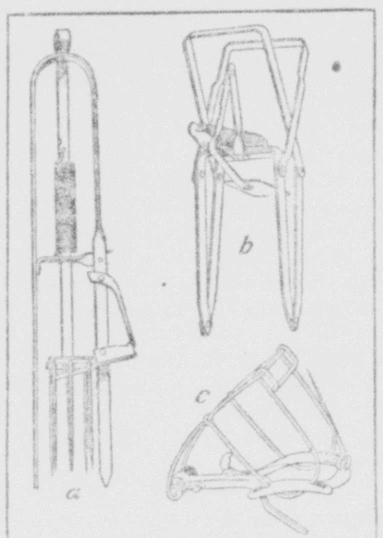
In Most Cases. However, Animal Is Most Beneficial.

Use of Specially Designed Trap Is Most Effective Method of Freeing Infested Ground—Three Devices Described.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The common garden mole, which, because of its insectivorous habits, is in most situations much more beneficial than harmful, is a decided nuisance when it invades a well-kept lawn or a newly planted seedbed. Many reports of its damage to lawns are received by the department, and also frequent complaints of destruction of potatoes, bulbs, and plants which is wrongly attributed to the mole. Damage to plants and tubers is generally the work of pine mice or meadow mice, usually the former. The burrowing habits of pine mice closely resemble those of the mole, and they frequently use mole tunnels to reach growing plants. Pine mice may easily be killed with poisoned grain, but as moles will seldom take poisoned baits of any kind, the main dependence for destroying them is traps, and considerable experience and judgment are required to use them effectively.

The ordinary traps intended for rats and other rodents are useless for taking moles. Special mole traps, of which there are on the market three general types, are required. These may be designated as the harpoon, the scissor-jaw, and the choker types, marked a, b, and c, respectively, in the accompanying illustration. Harpoon traps are intended to impale the mole in the soil by spring-driven spikes. Scissor-jaw traps are to be set astride the runway to grasp the mole when it attempts to pass in either direction. The choker trap has a pair of wire loops that encircle the burrow when the trap is set. All these traps are sprung by the same sort of mechanism—a trigger pan resting on a depressed place in the mole ridge in such way as to be lifted when the animal passes beneath. No part of a set mole trap should ever be in the runway, as its presence makes the animal avoid the obstruction by burrowing around or below it.



Mole Traps—a, Harpoon; b, Scissor-Jaw; c, Choker.

Directions for Setting Traps.

Only general directions for setting mole traps can be given here, nor are detailed instructions necessary, since the makers of traps usually furnish specific directions for using them. A mole trap can be successfully operated only when set on that part of a mole runway which is near the surface and has the soil raised into a distinct ridge, newly worked. Freshly broken soil usually indicates that the tunnel is in use. When in doubt, the operator may make a small break in the ridge and observe whether the mole repairs it within a few hours. In placing a trap, one of the stretches of the runway that leads in a definite direction should be chosen rather than one of the turns that may not be regularly traversed by the mole.

Before setting the trap, it is well to ascertain the course of the burrow by thrusting down a lead pencil, or stick of similar size. The trap selected should then be lined up with the course as nearly as possible; the jaws of the scissor-jaw type should straddle it, the loops of the choker type should encircle it, and the spikes of the harpoon type should be directly above it. In the case of the harpoon type, it is best to force the impaling spikes into the ground once or twice to facilitate their penetrating into the burrows when the trap is sprung. It is desirable also, in setting any of the traps, to depress only that part of the ridge immediately under the trigger pan, using the hand instead of the foot for this purpose. A little earth or a small chip of wood may be placed under the pan if necessary. The trigger catch should be set as lightly as possible, and one should avoid stepping on any part of the runway near the trap. It will pay to visit traps at least twice a day.

Moles are persistent in repairing breaks in their tunnels and may often be surprised at their work. It is easy then to capture the animal by impaling it with a fork or throwing it out by a quick thrust of spade or shovel. A section of the runway may first be broken open or leveled and the place watched until the animal is observed moving the soil.

Other Traps Used.

Moles are sometimes trapped in empty glass jars, gallon size. The jar should be set along a main mole runway that has been long in use. A narrow excavation, deep enough to receive the jar and allow its top to be somewhat below the bottom of the tunnel, should be made. The sod may then be replaced over the excavation so as to bridge without obstructing the entrance to the jar. The animal in coming along the tunnel falls into the jar and cannot climb out. Success depends much on the skill used in placing the trap.

Repeated leveling of mole ridges on a lawn by means of a roller not only tends to discourage the animals from making further incursions, but prevents the soil from drying out and thus injuring grass roots.

For further information about the mole, its habits, and methods of control, the reader is referred to Farmers' Bulletin 583, "The Common Mole of the Eastern United States."

PIG TROUGH IS A NECESSITY

For Large Animals V-Shaped Device Will Be Found Durable and Convenient—How It Is Made.

The pig trough is a very necessary equipment. For large hogs a very durable and economical trough is a V-shaped one which can be made of pieces 2 by 10 and 2 by 8, but for the younger pigs smaller pieces should be used. Care should be taken in making them. If they are too high the pigs cannot feed conveniently. If too low, the pigs will get into the trough in order to get the feed.

The trough set in a fence, parallel to it, is a very satisfactory arrangement. A swinging panel can be hung above the trough. A latch slipping crosswise at the center of the panel makes it possible to swing it in and fasten it, thereby shutting out the pigs until all the feed is put into the trough.

The pig trough should be kept clean. A thorough scrubbing occasionally will be an advantage to the animals' health. If the trough is set on a cement feeding floor there will be less dirt and filth.
